Background

Prepares a municipal trade licence, a health or eating-house licence, or a factory-within-municipal-limits licence application or renewal — identifying the correct licence category for the activity, and assembling the premises, NOC and document set for the municipal body, so the business operates legally.

Purpose of this tool & output

Prepare a municipal trade, health or factory-within-limits licence application or renewal, with the category and document set

How the output is used

Use the correct licence category and the premises/NOC/document set to apply for or renew the municipal trade licence, health/eating-house licence, or factory-within-limits licence with the municipal body, so the business operates legally.

Who receives it

The municipal corporation / local body (the health or licensing department) that issues the trade, health or factory-within-limits licence.

How to submit / file it

Apply on the municipal portal with the premises proof, the activity category, the NOCs (fire, pollution, etc. as applicable) and the identity/GST documents; the licence issues after scrutiny and any inspection.

Fees & charges

The licence fee depends on the trade category, the area and the municipal schedule, and is usually renewable annually; a facilitation fee if an agent is used.

Who should vet it

No professional is strictly needed for a simple trade licence; a consultant helps for a health/eating-house or factory-within-limits licence and its NOCs.

Important cautions

Operating without the correct municipal licence invites a penalty, sealing and prosecution, and a health/eating-house category has its own NOCs (FSSAI, fire, pollution); the category and fee vary by city. Verify the correct category and renewal cycle.
